THE TEACHER

“When I think of The Teacher, I see it as a carefully organized and engrossing analysis of how a society can slowly grow numb and browbeaten to the point of losing hope of effecting any change at all. It is a film about how collective lethargy can lead to tragedy. And a film about the hope contained in refusing to stand idly by, about overcoming one’s own fears. This is something that I find extraordinarily topical, and if it is well filmed, it always will be!”

Director Jan Hřebejk

Jan Hřebejk was born 27 June 1967 in Prague. He is a Czech film, television, and theater director. Jan Hřebejk is without a doubt one of the best Czech directors today. He has received another two Czech Lions for his films – “Up and Down” and “Big Beat”. At the Karlovy Vary Film Festival in 2013, he received the directing award for his most recent film, “Honeymoon”.

They are asked to sign a petition to move Miss Drazdechova out of the school. The teacher’s high connections within the Communist Party makes everyone feel threatened, but at his point they have no choice but to make a decision: will they dare to go against Miss Drazdechova and stand up for what they believe in at any risk, or will they just remain silent and let things be?

CAVE

"For a long time I've wanted to work with genre film in a greater sense, and have been looking for an idea that combines a broad commercial appeal with an intricate plot and interesting characters. The thriller is a classical genre that plays with well-functioning, established conventions, where suspense is created in the encounter with the audience. The potential here, and the many possibilities for unexpected plot twists that challenges the expectations of the audience, is an exciting aspect that greatly interests me. My aim is to make an exciting thriller, supported by well-developed characters clearly defined by their motivations, with a plausible plot as a foundation. The intrigue and the events of the film are logically outlined and feel authentic, in order to create as much engagement from the audience as possible."

Three friends - Charlotte, Adrian and Viktor who are all in their late 20s become friends during their time on service in the Telemark Battalion in Afghanistan between 2010 and 2012. Not long after, Adrian and Charlotte fall in love whilst still working in the army. All three of them are extreme sports enthusiasts and love the physical challenges associated with explorations. Ever since they first met, they have planned to descent into an unexplored cave system deep in the mountains. Several years earlier, two foreign divers drowned while exploring a part of the cave they wish to explore. One of the divers was never found, and in the time that followed the cave was closed off for expedition. Regardless of the obvious danger, the three friends decide to set forth on the journey alone through the cave. The journey that awaits them requires them to raft, rappel, climb and dive. The journey is expected to take 48 hours to get from the start point to the exit on the opposite side of the mountain. Whilst they didn't expect the descent to be easy, they didn't plan for what they faced in the dark, narrow depths of the uncharted cave.

“In my writing and directing I always draw upon my own personal life and experiences. Actually, my inspiration writing Parents arose from a dream I had, several years ago, of my own parents moving into their pre-parenthood apartment. This dream initiated a curiosity in me to explore the human need for reliving and taking control over your past - a state of mind I find quite universal.”

PARENTS

BROTHERS

arkus and Lukas live in an old townhouse in the middle of Oslo. The river runs close to their home. A paradise in the big city. And then there's Smøla, where their mother grew up and where summer vacations are spent. We watch them grow up, and their dreams and expectations being shaped. Markus loves soccer, and wants to be a professional. Lukas is more of a philosopher asking questions about the world, about himself, and what it's all is about. Sometimes, what they want and need is the direct opposite of being a loving son or brother. The documentary Brothers is filmed by director Aslaug Holm, the boys' mother, over an eight year period. This is her attempt to capture their childhood and brotherhood, and their discovery of life, whilst looking back at her own family history.

"I wanted to make a film that describes childhood, growing up, memories and the close relationship between brothers. Before I became a mother, I believed we could influence our children much more. Now, after having two sons I discovered that they have been ready-made from the beginning. I have earlier been around the world and filmed prominent people. But I slowly realised what life really is about - trying to understand who we are from the beginning. That's why I wanted to do Brothers"
