ow far are you willing to go to save the people you love? This is the question Christian is forced to answer when he is smuggled into Syria in a desperate search for his son Adam. It's a deadly and soul-searching journey into a brutal, war-torn country. Gradually, Christian realises that he must be willing to sacrifice everything he believes in to be reunited with his son.

“My hope is that the film will foster a conversation about how we communicate with each other. How can we approach our children, and ultimately each other, without exhausting the dialogue and being left with violence as the only resort? That is the question.”

n American Vampire Road Movie. A young couple on the run come across a derelict trailer park, BOGIEVILLE. Convinced to stay by the sinister caretaker ‘Crawford’ they soon learn that he is a guardian to the residents of Bogieville, a pack of Vampires headed by the formidable Madison. Crawford’s presence is explained as we learn that Madison has turned his twelve-year-old daughter Lily, condemning her to everlasting immortality. An eternal struggle exists between Madison and another vampire Billy Cupps, who will stop at nothing to take control of Bogieville.

“I received the screenplay for Bogieville almost 15 years ago from Writer Henry P. Gravelle who comes from Boston Massachusetts in America, and I immediately fell in love with Henry’s unique take on the vampire legend and from that day on I pledged that I would get his film made.”
